Term 3, Week 4

Tuesday, 14th August, 2018

Last term Anna Scott brought her Kindergarten group up to the area at the back of the High School. It was lovely to see them slowly make their way up the track stopping now and then to remark on a new discovery or an interesting surprise. It may have been a lizard hugging a rock, or a bandicoot scurrying for cover, or maybe a spiders web covered with geometrically arranged dew drops sparkling in the low morning sun. It was morning and the new day was alive with endless possibilities of interest. For the children there was no hurry to get anywhere. Everything was interesting, sometimes beautiful, often amazing. Each moment was a possibility not missed.

There is something enchanting about these early childhood years when nature is full of interesting surprises waiting to be found. Sometimes High School students pause and watch the little ones dawdle along, attracted by their innocence and unencumbered fascination. The older students with their narrowed interests and intense social awareness still see the delight in their sanguine discoveries. As do the adults if we take the time. The little children are a blessing, a reminder of the wonder and beauty available to all of us if we take the time to notice it.

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe was a German writer, scientist and statesman of the early nineteenth century. He wrote about an openness in attitude towards nature which he called “delicate empiricism”. In fact a whole mode of inquiry is now called Goetheam Science in which we look at nature with the blessed openness of the young child as well as the appreciation of the artist. Through this approach a deeper connection and understanding of nature is gained. It is the approach we use in Waldorf Education that allows the wonder and reverence developed in childhood to shine through and enhance the discoveries we make for the rest of our lives.

IN THE LIGHT OF A CHILD

Now springing from fertile Mother of all living things, the Earth,

*Comes joy-of-growth, as power leading all her children unto birth.

*My life is charmed, my strength is sure,

*For I am armed - my heart is pure;

And I can join amidst this joy and merriment with radiant mirth!

CLASS 8 PLAY
This week Class 8A will be taking to the stage to perform in the famous comedic play A Midsummer Night’s Dream written by William Shakespeare, directed by Donna Kerr.

Set in Athens, the play portrays the events surrounding the marriage of Theseus, the Duke of Athens, to Hippolyta, the former queen of the Amazons. These include the adventures of four young Athenian lovers and a group of six amateur actors (the mechanicals) who are controlled and manipulated by the fairies who inhabit the forest in which most of the play is set.

The play is one of Shakespeare's most popular works for the stage and is widely performed across the world.

Cast 1: Thursday, 16th August - 9:00am
Friday, 17th August - 6:30pm

Cast 2: Thursday, 16th August - 6:30pm
Friday, 17th August - 9:00am

The Class 8’s have been creating some amazing poster art for their play. Pictured to the right and over the next page are some of these posters.

CLASS 12 ZOO EXCURSION
On Monday, 6th August Class 12 went to the zoo to learn about the evolution of primates. They explored the different morphology of the primates, including their skulls; the way they move, behave, use tools and other cultural differences.

We even had a chance to briefly watch elephants play soccer and observe the different primates in the zoo.

CLASS 12 PROJECTS
At the beginning of this term Class 12 handed in their completed essays and reports. This is a big moment as it brings together work that they have been researching since the beginning of the year. It is also a real milestone in the journey of the Class 12 Project as now focus shifts towards completion of the Practical due mid September and then onwards towards the Presentations in October. Time really begins to fly and the Class 12s now realise that in reality they only have until the end of this term of usual school experience. It brings up thoughts of the future which for most is a double edge sword - the excitement of it, the relief of the Project being over but also sadness that their time at Perth Waldorf School is over and they now get a real feeling of how our school community holds them and cares for them. Please think of them in this time of transition.

The Marking Panel for the essays and reports are in full swing and plans are already in the air for Presentation week which will run from Monday, October 22nd until Friday, October 26th - please save the date!

Each milestone within the Project year is celebrated by the Class 12s - usually with the help of Megan’s delicious chocolate brownies. Thank you to the canteen yet again for our delicious cake, thank you to Jana from Community Support for the wonderful chai and thoughtful table setting and finally thank you to Pete for the brazier and to Matt and Melody for making sure the fire was safe after our celebrations were over.

Penny Champ - Class 12 Project Co-ordinator
DYLAN STONE
Hello all,

My name is Dylan Stone, and I’m a year 12 student at PWS. My project explores the concept of ‘ethical investment.’ Officially, the title is: Ethical Investment: why should we look to invest ethically, and can it match or outperform more traditional sectors? This question has led me to explore the history and evolution of ethical investment as a strategy for profit, and to observe environmental and social issues we face across the globe with ethical investment as a solutionary strategy. Most importantly, I have come to the realisation that ethically screening investments is not only a profitable approach for investors, funds etc., but a method of activism and in some cases, a moral imperative.

For the practical component, I am running a virtual ethical portfolio and creating a short video featuring interviews with some investors and professionals... and I’m running a small survey, with a few questions relating to my topic. I will be forever grateful if you can have a look! It takes barely a minute to complete. This is the link to the survey: https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/787D6NK

Cheers,
Dylan Stone
JAVIER FINLAY
For my Class 12 project I’m asking the question: “what are the benefits of electric vehicles, and how will we transition to a fully electric society?” While internal combustion engine vehicles have had massive benefits for society, you are probably aware that there are also some very significant problems associated with them, including harmful emissions, finite fuel reserves, engine inefficiency and noise pollution. Out of a concern for our health and the environment and an interest in exploring electric technology, I chose to look at electric vehicles as a solution to these problems that also have the potential for higher performance parameters. A transition to electric transport is already underway, with companies such as Tesla paving the way for a new car market, but current climate damage dictates that we must adopt the technology within around 20 years so there are significant challenges involved. I have explored government solutions and the work of private enterprises to try and achieve electric vehicle market penetration and am working to devise my own solution for an efficient transition in Australia.

For my practical I have chosen to convert a second-hand motorbike to electric, to use as a commuter within my local area. This has been a big challenge and learning experience as I wasn’t very familiar with the theory and design requirements at the start of the year. I’m using lithium ion phosphate batteries and a powerful drive system for reliable performance and have calculated that I will be spending over three times less on fuel than if I were driving the original bike. Through the process I have gained knowledge of mechanical and electrical principles, an area of interest that I am thinking of studying at university.

If you have any questions or thoughts on this issue, feel free to have a chat if you see me around.

LEEUWIN PRINCE-RUIZ
My name is Leeuwin Prince-Ruiz, and I’m attending year 12 at Perth Waldorf School. I was first inspired for my year 12 projects when watching the launch of the Mars rocket ‘Falcon Heavy’ - Seeing the two side boosters of the rocket gently gliding down and landing simultaneously to then be reused in the next rocket, struck me as a monumental human technological achievement. I started thinking about how, since the beginning of the Industrial Revolution human kind has gone through an exponential technological growth. We, as a civilisation have split the atom, put men on the moon and built a society unparalleled in our planets history. This inspired me to look at three technologies; Artificial intelligence, space technology and longevity medicines, and look at how they could affect our species, for better or worse.

For my practical I decided to build a small rocket with the help of my grandfather who owns an engineering workshop. The aim of the practical was to examine the principles and challenges behind making a rocket. ‘m facing a few unexpected difficulties, but so far it has gone well. I look forward to seeing you all at the project presentations.

Thank you!
Leeuwin Prince-Ruiz
JULIETTE MEYER-BERNSTEIN

Did you know that Australians are currently three times wealthier than we were in the 1950s? Not only are our living standards the highest they have ever been, but so are our depression rates.

My name is Juliette Meyer, and for my Class 12 project, I have looked at the rise of the hyper-consumerist culture which has brought the world into a state of disarray; degrading the planet and human wellbeing, placing us firmly in the grips of “affluenza,” the social disease caused by overconsumption and rampant materialism.

Throughout this project, I have examined the psychology behind instantaneous gratification, the increasing social pressures, and multinational corporations’ use of manipulative techniques that make us crave, work for, and acquire debt for, things we don’t need. We Aussies now have the highest debt levels in the world! I have also examined why consumers who try to advocate for sustainability can fall victim to the eco-market that has developed alongside the unethical one, becoming a signifier of social status, and encouraging middle classes to consume “eco-junk” in the name of environmentalism and ethics. This eco-market appeases our conscience by encouraging us to express our politics through shopping as a substitute for meaningful change. To capture these concepts, I have made a series of abstract artworks which represent the chaos of affluenza.

In seeking a cure to affluenza, I have explored a principle that can replace the dissatisfaction characterising consumerism: gratitude. I have lived amongst monastic Buddhist woman, observing their minimalist lifestyles and their ongoing practice of gratitude. I have conducted an interview with Alice, a woman who lives and works amongst Perth consumers, yet has avoided the consumerist rabbit-hole through her practice of profound gratitude. I am excited to share my findings with the community, in the hope of assisting us all to heal from our affluenza and uncover a more meaningful way of living.

Thank you!

Juliette Meyer

LIFE MAPPING
charting and exploring your Biography.

Life is itself a path of initiation which becomes more meaningful when it is lived in full consciousness, in a way that can be achieved through working on one’s biography. (Burkhard, G. Biographical Work: the Anthroposophical Basis.2007).

Biography Work through Life Mapping provides a way of remembering life phases (septennials or 7 year phases) and uses artistic exercises to illuminate these memories. After five weeks each participant will have a chart of main life events as a basis for further development. Conversation, creative writing, drawing and movement allow the workshops to be interactive, engaging and heartening.

Wednesday, 22nd August - Wednesday, 19th September.
7:00pm-8:30pm.

Course fee: $100 or $80 Concession.
